SUMMARY ANALYSIS

The “Florida Residential Landlord and Tenant Act” (the Act) governs the relationship between landlords and tenants under a residential rental agreement. The Act provides landlords with certain rights of entry to the dwelling unit. For example, the landlord may enter a dwelling unit for purposes of repair to the premises, but the landlord must first give “reasonable notice” of 12 hours to a tenant beforehand.

The bill increases the time period that a landlord must give to a tenant prior to entering the dwelling unit to 24 hours, from 12 hours.

The bill provides an effective date of July 1, 2022.

The bill does not have a fiscal impact on state or local governments.

FULL ANALYSIS

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Florida Residential Landlord and Tenant Act

Part II of ch. 83, F.S., known as the "Florida Residential Landlord and Tenant Act" (Act), governs the relationship between landlords and tenants under a residential rental agreement.¹

The Act does not apply to:²

- Residency or detention in a facility when it is incidental to the provision of medical, geriatric, educational, counseling, religious, or similar services.
- Occupancy under a contract of sale of a dwelling unit or property of which it is a part.
- Transient occupancy in a public lodging establishment or a mobile home park.
- Occupancy by a holder of a proprietary lease in a cooperative apartment.
- Occupancy by an owner of a condominium unit.

Any right or duty declared in the Act is enforceable by civil action. A right or duty enforced by civil action under the Act does not preclude prosecution for a criminal offense related to the lease or leased property. If either the landlord or the tenant fails to comply with the requirements of the rental agreement or the Act, the aggrieved party may recover the damages caused by the noncompliance.³ Under certain circumstances, either party may take action to terminate the lease.⁴

Covenant of Quiet Enjoyment

Generally, a tenant is entitled to the right of private, peaceful possession of the dwelling, which includes limited access to the dwelling unit by the landlord.⁵ In the absence of inconsistent express covenants, an ordinary lease includes an implied covenant of quiet enjoyment under Florida law,⁶ and use of the words "lease" or "demise" in a lease imports a covenant of quiet enjoyment.⁷ Thus, a valid ordinary lease of real estate raises an implied covenant of quiet and peaceful enjoyment of the leased premises exercisable against the landlord, unless there is an express covenant of a more limited character inconsistent with the judicially implied covenant of quiet enjoyment.⁸

Landlord's Obligation to Maintain Premises

At all times during a tenancy, the landlord must comply with the requirements of applicable building, housing, and health codes. Where there are no applicable building, housing, or health codes, the landlord must maintain the roofs, windows, screens, doors, floors, steps, porches, exterior walls, foundations, and all other structural components in good repair and the plumbing in reasonable working condition.⁹

⁹ S. 83.51(1), F.S.

Generally, the landlord is restricted to accessing the dwelling unit under certain scenarios. The landlord may enter the dwelling unit at any time for the protection or preservation of the premises.¹⁰

The landlord may enter the dwelling unit upon reasonable notice to the tenant and at a reasonable time for the purpose of repair of the premises. “Reasonable notice” for the purpose of repair is notice given at least 12 hours prior to the entry, and reasonable time for the purpose of repair shall be between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 8:00 p.m.¹¹

The tenant may not unreasonably withhold consent to the landlord to enter the dwelling unit from time to time in order to inspect the premises; make necessary or agreed repairs, decorations, alterations, or improvements; supply agreed services; or exhibit the dwelling unit to prospective or actual purchasers, mortgagees, tenants, workers, or contractors.¹² The landlord may enter the dwelling unit when necessary for these purposes under any of the following circumstances:¹³

- With the consent of the tenant;
- In case of emergency;
- When the tenant unreasonably withholds consent; or
- If the tenant is absent from the premises for a period of time equal to one-half the time for periodic rental payments. If the rent is current and the tenant notifies the landlord of an intended absence, then the landlord may enter only with the consent of the tenant or for the protection or preservation of the premises.

The landlord may not abuse the right of access or use it to harass the tenant.¹⁴

Miya Marcano

On September 24, 2021, Miya Marcano, a student at Valencia College, went missing from her apartment in Orlando, Florida, where she also worked at the front office. She was later found dead miles from her apartment.¹⁵

Investigators for the Orange County Sheriff's Office said Marcano was taken from her apartment by Armando Caballero, who was a maintenance worker at the same apartment complex. It is alleged that he used a master key fob for the apartment complex to enter her apartment. Caballero was found dead by apparent suicide a few days after Marcano went missing.¹⁶

Effect of the Bill

The sponsor has entitled the act “Miya’s Law,” in memory of Miya Marcano.

The bill increases the “reasonable notice” time period that a landlord must give to a tenant prior to entering the dwelling unit for purposes of repair of the premises, to 24 hours, from 12 hours.

The bill provides an effective date of July 1, 2022.

IV. AMENDMENTS/COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE CHANGES

On January 27, 2022, the Regulatory Reform Subcommittee considered a proposed committee substitute and reported the bill favorably as a committee substitute. The committee substitute differs from HB 577 by removing provisions to require apartments licensed by the Department of Business and Professional Regulation (DBPR) to:

- Screen each employee as a condition of employment,
- Maintain a log accounting of all keys for each dwelling unit,
- Establish policies and procedures related to dwelling unit keys, and
- Provide DBPR with proof of compliance of these requirements upon request.

The analysis is drafted to the committee substitute as passed by the Regulatory Reform Subcommittee.
